

ALEXANDRIA, VA.
SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 23

While the workman is undoubtedly worthy of his hire, that he often fails to receive it is a patent fact. Many men, unappreciated and, in a measure, unknown to the unthinking world, battle against tremendous odds throughout their existence. At this season of the year, when many have left the heated cities to spend vacations in rural or seaside retreats, others find it difficult to exist at home. Rev. A. H. Lambert, a retired Methodist Episcopal minister, told a sad story to a newspaper man in New York a few days ago. The former minister had advertised for a position. He was willing to become a watchman or to follow any other honest calling in order to maintain his invalid wife and little children. The reverend gentleman among other things said:

"After I was ordained I decided to take up missionary work. I began in France, then went to the West Indies and finally to South and Central America. My salary as a missionary averaged $35 a month. That was enough to live on comfortably in those countries and properly support my family. I worked hard for thirty years converting people to the church. Then I dreamed of the United States and set my heart on coming here, and becoming a part of the great missionary work I had heard this country was carrying on. It is two years ago since I came here from South America. I was born in Holland, of Dutch parents, and can speak French, German, Spanish, Dutch, English and Italian. But my dream of this country were shattered by a sudden awakening. I not only found that missionaries are not sought here, but that the churches are over-supplied with pastors. There is plenty of work to be done without response and I have turned my hand to much of it, but I could not go on neglecting my wife and little ones. In order to earn an honest living I am compelled to seek employment as a watchman or timekeeper or something else of the sort."

In justification of the attack of Senator Bristow on Senator Aldrich, chairman of the Senate committee on finance, for advance in the cotton goods schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, it is pointed out in Washington that the blame for the advances must be charged to the Senate committee on finance alone. In the hearings of the House committee on ways and means, representatives of the cotton goods manufacturers appeared and to a man they said no advances in the cotton schedule of the Dingley act were necessary, and Chairman Payne and his colleagues made up their minds to make no changes in the Dingley rates on cotton goods. But the Senate finance committee held star chamber sessions, listened to the arguments of both sides, and framed a bill of their own which made more than 700 changes in the Payne bill's schedules. Of this 700 many were in the cotton schedule. It is here that Senator Aldrich, chairman of that committee, got in his work.

Troubles continued to multiply in Spain, and from present indications, Alfonso has a sword suspended over his head as had Damocles of old. The spirit of republicanism—more properly anarchy—has spread over the country, and it is gaining force at an alarming rate. The recent severing of relations with the Vatican has added oil to the flames, and while discontent is apparent throughout the realm many exiles are on the French frontier awaiting an opportunity to re-enter the country and make attempts to crush the present dynasty. In the meantime Jaime, the pretender, is endeavoring to marshal the Carlists to his banner in order to take advantage of the present unhappy conditions. Truly, uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

Cases of juvenile degeneracy are often brought to light. Some people attribute the trouble to moving pictures; others to cheap literature with which boys too often fill their minds. Crime and its consequences seemed to sit very lightly last evening on Michael Cardo, seventeen years old, of Williamsburg, New York, as he confessed to having set fire to a number of houses for the purpose of committing burglaries. In his boyish treble he calmly told of having started a fire in a large tenement house adjoining the one in which his parents and his eight brothers and sisters live. Cardo confessed to complicity in five arson cases and in as many burglaries. When the boy's father heard his confession he sprang at him, seized him by the throat and cried: "My God, that I have raised such a son! I'll kill you!" The father was pulled away and the detectives to whom the boy had confessed ran out of the house with the boy.

The French war office today accepted a Wright biplane from the newspaper Le Triomphe. The aeroplane made successive flights of ten, twenty and thirty minutes and performed perfectly.

FROM WASHINGTON.

(Correspondence of Alexandria Gazette)

Major General Leonard Wood will go to Beverly, Mass., on Tuesday for a conference with President Taft on the military policy of the United States. This will be the first time that General Wood has seen the president since he has been on his present detail as chief of staff. A number of important questions, involving changes and suggested moves toward reorganization, will be taken up for consideration.

A sneak thief who has been operating extensively on Pullman cars entering this city, it was learned, today has robbed Samuel C. Clubb, a prominent club man, of St. Louis, New York and Baltimore, of a family heirloom valued at more than $200. Repeated stories of thefts on Washington bound Pullman cars had put Clubb on his guard and he fastened the heirloom, which was a diamond studded pin of quaint design, securely to the jacket of his pajamas before retiring. The pin was in place when Clubb awoke. Only five minutes when he entered the laboratory did he leave the jacket with the pin out of his sight. Every effort is being made by the police here to stop the robberies on Pullman cars. They are numbered at least one a week for some time, yet not the slightest clue to the thief has been found.

With the large margin of 45,592 people in the event of re-apportionment of congressional representation of the states, Oklahoma is considered here today as assured of one more representative in the Sixty-Third Congress. The official count of noses in Oklahoma showed the tremendous gain of 237,774 people in three years, the last census taken in that state having been made in 1907. Under the last apportionment of 1907 the states were allowed one representative for every 122,182 of population. This leaves little question of the addition to Oklahoma's representation in Congress. Whether the gain will redound to the advantage of the majority or the minority side of the House is a difficult question to answer. The delegation from Oklahoma now numbers three republicans and two democrats, and it is considered as one of the doubtful states in all its elections.

The submarine Cuttlefish, which was obliged to put in at Chesapeake Beach last night while on her way up to Annapolis because of difficulty with her food pumps, started for Annapolis today under her own power. The submarine Viper and Tarantula came to her assistance and re-charged her batteries which had run down.

Acting Postmaster General Grandfield today announced that an investigation would be made of the pneumatic tube service now in operation in Chicago, to determine the feasibility of making the service more extensive. A committee has been appointed to begin work at once and make a report to the department as soon as possible. The personnel is as follows: C. H. Reed, superintendent division of railway adjustments; D. A. Campbell, postmaster at Chicago; V. J. Bradley, Superintendent railway mail service, second division; E. L. West, superintendent division of railway mail service, sixth division; R. M. S. J. H. Martin, assistant superintendent R. M. S. sixth division; W. R. Hoffman, superintendent division of salaries and allowances; and J. L. Stice, P. O. inspector.

The Interstate Commerce Commission today issued an order postponing the reduced rates on California lemons will go into effect. The cut from $1.15 to $1.00 per hundred weight will apply to all eastern points. The order today seems to make it certain that no further postponement will be possible. The State Department has received no papers from the Italian government regarding the extradition of Porter Charlton, who killed his wife at Lake Como, and was stated upon the best authority to be that the department does not expect to take any action or to be consulted until after the extradition commissioner at Jersey City passes upon the case. It is believed here that the papers were sent by the government at Rome to the Italian Consul in New York and that he will take the matter up formally with the United States commissioner in the district. If the extradition papers were sent to the State Department, it is asserted, they simply would not come back to the department unless as referred formally by the commissioner. The question of whether the United States will surrender the young American to the Italian authorities probably will not be decided for some time according to the expectation of the department officials.

Brandishing a huge knife with which he slashed at all within his reach Jack Butler, a negro, today caused considerable excitement near Tenth and C streets, northwest. Butler was evidently under the influence of some drug. He succeeded in cutting three men, two of whom were on a street car, which because of the excitement had been unable to run. He boarded the car and would have undoubtedly inflicted havoc had not Policemen John Goff, Cox and Clineinsten put in appearance. He was overpowered and sent to the first police station. The three men are not seriously injured.

One man was burned to death and two firemen overcome yesterday afternoon when fire gutted the building at 1319 Seventh street northwest, Washington, occupied by Michael Daly as a saloon and residence.

Hon. H. St. George Tucker, of Virginia, has sold his handsome new residence at 231 and R streets, in this city, for $95,000.

Protecting $550 of his employers' money he carried, Valentine Alvanna, a Spaniard, book keeper for Corello and Merwin, orchid growers of Mammoth, N. Y., early today shot and killed Frank Valle, who he says, attacked him with the intention of robbing him. He endeavored to grapple with his assailant, but finding himself overpowered drew a revolver and fired three shots, the last lodging in Valle's abdomen killing him.

CONDITIONS IN SPAIN

Alfonso's Throne Believed to be Tottering—Country Threatened by Anarchy. Republicanism and the Carlists.—Diplomatic Relations with the Vatican Severed.

Madrid, July 30.—Anarchy, republicanism, or a Carlist government, with Pretender Don Jaime at the head, is freely predicted in Spain today, following the sensational rupture of diplomatic relations between the government and the Vatican.

Torn by internal dissensions of almost every sort, with political and labor disputes ever threatening a crisis, with thousands of exiles camped along the French border awaiting an opportunity to march to Barcelona and proclaim a revolution, with a foreign war draining the treasury, the country reeking with the spirit of anarchy and now plunged into a religious strife that may alienate the bulk of the population, King Alfonso's throne is believed to be tottering and the monarchy itself facing engulfment in the impending upheaval.

The complete severance of diplomatic relations between the government is expected the moment the Vatican receives the ministerial note that is now being prepared—supporting the cabinet and king in their stand against the authority of the Vatican in Spanish church affairs. Already the government has withdrawn Marquis de Ojeda, its ambassador at the Vatican, and the recall of Monsignor Vico, Papal nuncio at Madrid, is momentarily expected.

When this is done, even the most optimistic admit that it will take a higher order of statesmanship and diplomacy than has been witnessed in Spain in years to escape a civil war and the resulting ruin of the country. The Vatican expects a civil war and is counting on the vast Catholic population to remain loyal to the church as against the government is clearly indicated in messages today from Rome. The firm stand taken by King Alfonso, heretofore considered one of the royal weaklings of Europe, is a big surprise to the country. A devout Catholic himself, he has come to the support of the supremacy of the government over the church and his apparent fearlessness in the present crisis has done much to win support for the government.

It is conceded that Alfonso merely acted in self defense for had he surrendered to the Vatican, the Canalejas cabinet would have resigned and a ministerial crisis been precipitated from which it is doubtful whether Alfonso could have emerged still wearing his crown. But at that, the king's actions are still a surprise, and have elevated him more in general esteem than anything he has done since his national alliance with the royal family of England.

Two things greatly complicate the present situation. One is the activity of Don Jaime, the pretender, and the other the unfortunate recurrence of severe fighting between the Spanish soldiers and Rif tribesmen in Morocco, whom Spain has been trying to subdue for more than a year. Don Jaime is writing to his Spanish supporters that he expects "the people soon to rally against the enemies of real liberty." He says he expects "to take the place of honor devolving on me by birth."

In Morocco the Rifis are taking advantage to the situation by renewed activity, and in a fight reported yesterday thirty Spanish soldiers were killed. The Mullahs are preaching a holy war against Spain and it is feared that the scope of the fighting will be greatly enlarged. The Rif campaign has never met with any enthusiasm, and the opponents of the government are now making the most of the failure to put an end to the hostilities in Spain's African possessions.

Even among the staunchest Catholics the cause leading to the present crisis is considered of little importance. Recently the premier, in response to a general demand for greater religious tolerance in Spain, issued a decree permitting non-Catholic organizations to display the insignia of worship.

At the time the government and the Vatican were engaged in a revision of the Concordat at the Vatican that it served so ineffectually that it would abandon the revision unless the edict were revoked. Canalejas warned the cabinet and the king that a compliance with the Vatican demand would mark the last step in the decadence of Spain. The cabinet backed by Alfonso, refused the Vatican's demand and recalled the Spanish ambassador to the Vatican.

As a result the entire nation is now in the throes of the greatest excitement with both the government and the radical clericals claiming the support of the vast majority of the public in the event of a war.

Rome, July 30.—Manager Vico, the papal nuncio, at Madrid, was recalled today, following the recall by Spain of Ambassador Ojeda. This completes the severance of diplomatic relations between Spain and the Vatican.

Mysterious Death of a Woman.

Philadelphia, July 30.—Much mystery surrounds the death of Catherine Cloughessy, 35 years old, a governess, whose body was found on a lawn opposite the fashionable Germantown cricket club grounds at Manheim today. With finger marks plainly imprinted upon her throat, and the condition of her clothing, every indication points to her having been strangled while defending herself against an attack.

Completely baffled, the police, who have had a large force at work at noon, following a post mortem examination, advanced the theory that the woman had swallowed her false teeth and strangled to death. Two gardeners found the woman's body beside a wall which incloses a lawn, and which was concealed by an ivy vine. Her white evening dress, as well as her undergarments, were torn and her body was bruised and cut. Marks on the ground and the appearance of the torn turf show that the woman died during a desperate struggle with her assailant.

Heavy rains continuing for two days and in many places reaching the proportions of cloudbursts have wrought enormous damage throughout Colorado and New Mexico, and have caused three deaths. Railway tracks have been washed away, many bridges destroyed and a number of towns inundated.

The Suspects.

Father Point, Que., July 30.—Steaming slowly up the broad reaches of the mighty St. Lawrence, her wireless silent to all but police officials, the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose is due off Father Point early Sunday afternoon. Then the world will know whether the hardy seafaring man, Captain Kendall of the Montrose, is a better detective than Inspector Walter Dew of Scotland Yard, the impetuous man of mystery, who took Dr. H. H. Crippen's promise that he would not attempt to escape from London when he was under suspicion there in connection with his wife's disappearance.

Fame Point, Que., July 30.—The following wireless message from Captain Kendall, of the Montrose, was picked up by the wireless station here today:

"Suspects did not sleep well last night. Both seem to be haggard and worried today. The woman is not nervous as the man, and apparently does not experience the same degree of terror."

The government officials received a wireless from Captain Kendall yesterday which said:

"We have just passed Belle Isle (10 a. m., Friday). Crippen is on deck, gazing landward. He is extremely nervous and visibly anxious. His worry seems to grow in intensity as we near port. Miss Lenore is still in her room and has remained there all day."

Saves Drowning Girl.

Wildwood, N. J., July 30.—At the outer end of the ocean pier a young man from Philadelphia saved from drowning Miss Florence B. Towse, of Lansdowne, Pa., who had been carried off by the undertow to a point beyond the life guard's line. The uneducated but running heavy and Miss Towse, who had been bathing with a party of friends, ventured out beyond the end of the pier. She is an expert swimmer, but a heavy sea taxed her hands and sink. Raymond Conklin, 25 years old, of 2025 South Eighteenth street, Philadelphia, was bathing near by and went to Miss Towse's aid. After a struggle he dragged her to the shore. "I thank you," said the young woman, who is a pretty blonde, to her rescuer, as she hurried to her cottage on Pine avenue.

Moving Against the Madrid Capital.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, July 30.—Dispatches received here from Managua, Nicaragua, today say that the city is in a state of great excitement as the result of a sudden and surprising movement by the revolutionists against the Madrid capital.

During the last week the revolutionists have been cutting wires and causing general disturbances on the east shore of Lake Managua. In a recent small engagement near Masagote, the Estrada men routed the Madrid forces and captured some guns and ammunition which the Madrid men had been transporting to a garrison.

Railway traffic east of Managua has been suspended and it is said that there is danger of the revolutionists closing in about the capital at any time. The people of the city are bitter against Madrid and it is believed that many would join the revolutionists' opportunity offered. Three revolutionary papers, secretly published in Managua, are being widely circulated. Madrid is saying a defensive attitude.

See Father Roast Alive.

Altoona, Pa., July 30.—Two sons were painfully burned in an effort to save the life of their father, James M. Spade, aged 57, of Ivona, who was fatally burned by an explosion of oil, with which he was trying to start a fire in a cabin car at Figart, on the Bellwood division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, last night. The oil ignited his clothing and before the boys could tear the flaming fabric from his body he was terribly burned and died four hours later.

Lured Back to His Fate.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 30.—Struck by a train while walking on the railroad tracks, and escaping each time almost by a miracle, Stephen Rodda vowed he would never again take any chances, but would keep away from the railroads. But today was in a hurry to get home from his work, and, after a year's absence, again took the track because the railroad was shorter cut home. He was struck by a train of freight cars, run over and killed.

Striker Killed.

Greensburg, Pa., July 30.—In a fight between striking miners and members of the state constabulary near Export early today, an unidentified striker was killed, and Trooper Davis seriously wounded. It is believed other strikers were wounded, but that they were carried away before the troopers could overtake them. The fight resulted from an attempt made by the strikers to shoot out a powerful searchlight located on a coal tipple of the Westmoreland Coal Company.

Outswims the Big Carp.

York, Pa., July 30.—A giant carp which Charles Strubinger, a twelve-year-old York boy, caught in a dip net, so heavy that it pulled the youngster into the Codorus creek. Although beyond his depth, he pluckily held onto the pole and swam to shore, landing the fish, which had become entangled in the meshes. With finger marks plainly imprinted upon her throat, and the condition of her clothing, every indication points to her having been strangled while defending herself against an attack.

Reported Massacre of Chinese.

Douglas, Ariz., July 30.—Unconfirmed reports of a brutal massacre of Chinese men and women at Yaqui were received here today. The dispatches declare a mob of Mexicans attacked the Chinese quarter, killing many. No details have been received, but the early advice indicate that revolting atrocities were committed, the bodies of several Chinese having been chopped to pieces. It is said.

There have been frequent threats to exterminate the Chinese there and in other parts of Mexico. Recently Chinese merchants at Cananea appealed to the Chinese minister at Washington to protect them and their families from Mexicans who were threatening to burn the Chinese quarter and murder the inhabitants.

Train Wrecked.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 30.—The Quaker City express of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, running over the Delaware & Hudson tracks, was wrecked by train wreckers at Pittston, ten miles from here, at midnight.

The engine, in charge of Engineer Casey, of Scranton, and Fireman Pearson, also of Scranton, turned over on its side, and both had a miraculous escape from death. Three of the four coaches of which the train was made up, were derailed, and the forward car badly smashed. Of the 25 passengers aboard the train all were badly shaken up, but none was seriously injured.

The vigilance of the engineer alone prevented what might have been a serious disaster. He saw the danger ahead, and before his engine struck the misplaced rail had applied the brakes and greatly reduced the speed of his train. Investigation showed that spikes had been drawn from a dozen coaches and a fishplate moved far enough to allow the rail to swing inward. This caused the flange of the wheels to strike the end of the rail and the derailment followed.

Searching for Murderer.

Quincy, Mass., July 30.—Armed to the teeth and instructed to shoot to kill on sight, more than 200 picked shots from Company K, Fifth Massachusetts regiment, the Boston Metropolitan police, and members of the fire and police forces of this city, are searching the country side here today for Louis Restelli, the contractor, who yesterday afternoon killed two persons and wounded five others. Mrs. Marianna Restelli, aged 65, and Henry E. Hardwick, aged 56, a quarry owner, were killed. Casper E. Restelli, aged 40, brother of the murderer, was shot twice through the body and is expected to die, and C. Theodore Hardwick, Benjamin Bishop, William Adrian and Archibald Parsons were wounded. Business difficulties with his family and in Hardwick's brothers are said to have been the cause of Restelli's murderous outbreak. Not a trace of Restelli has been discovered here, and the hunt was called off. It is feared the man will return and kill others.

Threatened Chinese Invasion.

London, July 30.—Dispatches from Simla, India, today say that two battalions of infantry and a mountain battery have been put in readiness to defend the Indo-Tibetan frontier from the threatened Chinese invasion.

There is no longer any doubt in army circles that the Chinese are planning a serious aggressive movement in Tibet and the situation is viewed with positive alarm. The British protectorates on the north Indian border are believed to be in great danger. There are large numbers of British residents in Nepal, Sikkim and Bhutan, and troops will be rushed to these points as speedily as possible.

Sixteen Killed in Race Riot.

Palestine, Tex., July 30.—Reports reaching here today say that fifteen negroes and one white man were killed and a score of whites and negroes injured in a race riot in the country near here last night. The first report said that a number of negroes and a posse of whites clashed over a negro arrested by the posse.

At noon messages were received here saying that twenty negroes and five whites had been killed. The clash between the races arose over a debt a negro owed one of the white men.

Governor Campbell has been asked to send troops to quell the riot and hundreds of white are rushing to the scene.

Three hundred negroes are said to be armed and declare they will kill any white man entering their settlement.

Assassination Plot.

Rome, July 30.—An anarchistic plot, having for its immediate aim the assassination of Dowager Queen Margherita and for its ultimate scope the wiping out of the royal family of Italy, was revealed here today by the suicide of a conscience-stricken youth who had been chosen to kill the queen mother. He was Angelo Danzi, of Milan.

MAGNESIA-ASBESTOS VICTIM.

That a score of well-known and wealthy society people have lost many thousands of dollars in the Magnesia-Asbestos Company, of which John Quibbey was president and Harvey Wiley Corbett treasurer, was the statement made in the Jefferson Market Court, in New York, yesterday, when Mrs. William T. Bull, widow of the great surgeon charged that she had been swindled out of $85,000.

The arrest of Corbett, who lay in jail all Thursday night, unable to get bail, was a shock to well-known men in educational and architectural circles. Corbett is among the two or three most prominent architects in New York. He is a partner in Pell & Corbett, a firm that has wide social connections.

He is an associate professor in Columbia. Even now he is constructing the group of public buildings for the city of Springfield, Mass., which are to cost about $4,000,000. He drew the plans for the Maryland Institute in Baltimore, a building which cost $1,000,000. With a Brooklyn firm he drew the plans for the magnificent Masonic Temple in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Bull's lawyer called Corbett and Quibbey "clever confidence men," and he so impressed the court that each was held in $20,000 bail. He said in the most positive manner that if the bail were fixed at a low figure both men would deposit it in cash and run off.

Martial Law May Be Declared.

Columbus, O., July 30.—Adjutant General Weybrecht today ordered the Fourth and Eighth regiments under command of General John C. Spaenke, to Columbus from Marietta on account of the strike situation. It is believed that martial law will be declared.

Wandering Arrested.

San Francisco, July 30.—Joseph Wendling, wanted in Louisville, in connection with the Alma Kellner case, was arrested here today. He admitted his identity.

Alma Kellner was slain in December 1909, while on her way to attend services in St. John's Church. Her body was found in a cistern under one of the parish houses. The chain of evidence against Wendling, who was the janitor is said to be conclusive.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

There were three deaths from the heat in Washington yesterday.

Henry Krintz, aged 75 years, of Louisville, Ill., yesterday married his mother-in-law, who is 60 years old.

White bathers at a Coney Island beach yesterday drew the color line day, making an attack on two negroes who attempted to enter the surf. Police had to be called to suppress the disorder.

According to the Census Bureau New York's debt amounts in the aggregate to 40 per cent. of the net indebtedness of all cities in the country having a population of more than 30,000.

A conference having for its purpose the revolutionizing of the cotton industry of the United States, attended by John Hays Hammond, Daniel J. Sully and Scott Dingleish, was held at Gloucester, Mass., yesterday.

It was announced at Beverly, Mass., yesterday, that President Taft had asked Senator W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, to make a trip through the west to inquire into political conditions in the various states.

Announcement was made yesterday that the directors of the Atlas Portland Cement Company, which has a capitalization of $12,500,000 have decided to suspend the dividend on its common stock for the present owing to recent heavy expenditures. The company has been paying 8 per cent. on its common stock.

In a fight that lasted well along to midnight, Congressman Charles S. Millington got a majority of delegates at the republican primary contests, whose candidate for congressmen is Theodore Douglas Robinson, nephew of ex-President Roosevelt.

Following Thursday's heavy rain in Louisville and many sections of Kentucky, there was a precipitation of nearly one inch in Louisville yesterday morning. It has rained in that section of the state nearly every day for five weeks and the damage to crops is mounting high, some authorities placing the loss to farmers and to railroads thus far this season at $3,000,000. Railroad traffic in the southwestern part of the state is nearly at a standstill owing to washouts. Advances from other points tell of serious conditions from heavy rains.

Erwin Wilder, the missing cashier of the Russo-Chinese Bank in New York, was arrested yesterday in that city. In the Court of General Sessions his lawyer, Leon Ginsberg, said that he would plead guilty, and he was committed to the Tombs in default of $25,000 bail. Ginsberg pleaded vainly with Judge Warren Foster for a lower amount, saying "none of this money is in my client's possession. It was all swallowed up in Wall street speculation." He is charged with removing $500,000 in bonds and stocks from the bank. Almost as soon as Wilder was arrested the grand jury handed up an indictment against him.

WHOLESALE MURDERER.

After killing two persons and wounding three others at whom he shot in an unexplained frenzy, Louis Restelli, a granite contractor, of Quincy, Mass., made his escape late yesterday and last night was at large.

His mother, Mrs. Rose Restelli, 65 years old, and Henry E. Hardwick, aged 56 years, one of the most prominent granite manufacturers in Quincy, from whom Restelli rented his place of business, are dead. Gaspare Restelli, 40 years, brother of Louis, has three bullet wounds in his body and is not expected to live. Benjamin Bishop, also a granite manufacturer, is suffering from two bullet wounds, one in the hand and another in the thigh, and C. Theodore Hardwick, brother of the dead man and his partner in business, will be crippled for life by a shattered knee pan, the result of one of Restelli's bullets.

The reason for Restelli's sudden running amuck was not evident last night, but it is suggested that money troubles had caused him to become demented. Restelli called yesterday at his mother's home, in South Quincy, to ask her for a loan which he had sought for several days. Her body was found later in the house, pierced by several bullets. Heading for his brother's place of business, Restelli met Bishop, had some words with him, and after a struggle, fired several shots, two of which took effect.

Restelli next went to his brother Gaspare's granite manufacturing establishment, and left him lying on the floor of his office, probably fatally wounded. Taking possession of a horse and buggy, Louis drove at an ordinary pace to the office of the Hardwick company, where he killed Henry Hardwick and wounded Theodore Hardwick.

At this point the police lost track of him in the quarry section.

Grave Diggers Strike.

Paris, July 30.—Grave diggers in Pere la Chaise cemetery, the largest in Paris, went on a strike today because of the employment of a non-union workman. Grave diggers at all the other cemeteries threaten to go out Monday unless the non-union man is discharged. Soldiers are doing the work of the Pere la Chaise strikers.

New York Stock Market.

New York, July 30.—Losses of about 1-4 to 3-4 of a point were sustained generally in the first few minutes today, after which the stock market assumed a steadier tone and a recovery of the fractional losses was in progress at the end of the first fifteen minutes.

Selling of 3-4 cent caused stock to decline 2 points. There was similar selling in a number of other issues, including steel common, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. The market closed weak.

Major Gibson, of the 2nd Virginia Battalion, has tendered his resignation, and it seems to be conceded that Capt. G. O. Leach, of the Front Royal military company, will succeed him. Lieut. Waller having been promoted to brigade commissary, with rank as major, there will be two vacancies to fill in Company D, from Front Royal.

Dr. Mann Page, aged about 40 years, died suddenly late yesterday afternoon at his home, near Keswick, Albemarle county. He was the youngest son of the late Thomas Walker Page, and brother of Dr. James Morris Page, dean of the University of Virginia, and of Dr. Thomas Walker Page, professor of economics in that institution.

Fines imposed by Justice Crutfield in Richmond yesterday upon several prominent business firms and individuals for delinquency in paying their taxes for 1910 aggregated $1,000. Under a new ordinance fines from $1 to $10 may be imposed for each week's delinquency, while a full season's delinquency is also in order.

Governor Mann has refused to pardon Wesley and Warren Craig, father and son, who are serving twenty-one and eighteen years, respectively, in the penitentiary for robbery, arson and murder.
